"Nah it isn't really impressive Den, I need a spicier plot, maybe make her a sneaky slut and make him like a semi beta and then maybe she gives him a night for three grand.....", Darren was cut off however, "Whoa whoa, hold your hippogriffs Ren, I'm writing a drama, not an erotica, I can't really stuff sexual stuff into my novella, because....". "Fuck that Den, drama and romance doesn't sell, it's sex , drugs and violence that is considered art, just look at Quentin Tarantino bruh." "Yeah man, I agree but even Kim Ki Dook made Fall Spring and Autumn man it's not about that I think sells as much as murder, just look at this Insight Timer. I literally have taken a raid

Both of them laughed, "Wanna go out for a cup-a-latte?", Darren proposed, Den nodded and they went out.

Den and Darren went past the Starbucks to Chico's coffee place. They saw Amy and Alyssa sitting there chattering, Den raised an eyebrow and looked at Darren while he shrugged.

Amy saw the two of them come in and called out to Darren, "Over here honey, we saved you seats." Den looked crossly at Darren, "So this was your plan, you fucked my mind up just so you could spend time with yo girl?" Darren grinned apologetically, "Hehe, bro you know me well" and they sat.

Alyssa turned to Den and looked him full in the eye, "So haven't seen you around lately,

Alyssa turned to Den and looked him full in the eye, "So haven't seen you around lately, what you been upto?". "Work", Den shrugged, "freelancing is troublesome, I create websites and I also write articles for the Daily News, it's tiresome.", she rolled her eyes away from him, they had cold shouldered each other for so long, they both knew they had a flame in their hearts for each other, if they let their flames fuse, it would become a lasso of love, but they never did. "How many times do we have to meet on pretext of schizophrenic non existent people Den?", she asked.
